DIRECTOR'S NOTE

All is not well at the Community Respite And Protection charity shop. There are lots of things to sell and Polly, the manageress, can always count on her merry band of volunteers to pander to all of the customers' needs.

The only problem is that they are up against competition for customers from the slick Oxfam shop down the street, and what few people do enter the CRAP shop never seem to buy anything.

To make matters worse, one of the charity's trustees is due to make an inspection and she has not been impressed by the shop's performance of late. There may be trouble ahead—which, of course, is the cue for a song, and happily there are lots of songs in this light-hearted musical comedy.
